The Lifeboat Amateur Radio Society has been established for Amateur Radio operators throughout the United Kingdom who share an interest in the Royal National Lifeboat Institution (RNLI).

Together we will promote the work of the RNLI and support it through special event stations and fund-raising events such as SOS Radio Week.

Membership costs just £10 and you can join today by filling in the form over the page or by visiting our new web site.

In 2011, Amateur Radio operators throughout the United Kingdom and Ireland raised over £2,600 during SOS Radio Week by setting up special event stations anywhere; at home, in Lifeboat stations, shops, schools and other places.

This is an event that everyone can take part in, there's no need to be a member of the Lifeboat Amateur Radio Society and you don't need to commit huge amounts of time.

Why not visit our web site or fill in the form over the page and register for your free sponsorship pack. No matter whether you're an individual, or a group, got just a couple of hours to spare, or a couple of days everyone can take part and support the RNLI.
